Bring Topics to Life

Tactile Learning

How would you like to borrow a rainforest puppet, an original baby's gas mask, a Victorian tin bath, or an original WWII newspaper?

Schools Library Services (SLS) can provide a range of objects to support all aspects of the curriculum. We promote object handling as a form of active learning that inspires pupils.

We offer value for money by delivering a range of resources that a school or teacher would not be able to source, afford or maintain.

All artefacts have been carefully collected. We believe they resonate with children, provoking questions and helping us all empathise with others in many times and places. They can fill classrooms with wonder and joy.

Whether traditional topics such as Romans, Vikings, Ancient Greece, Victorians, Tudors or topics recently added to the curriculum such as the Mayans, Benin, Stone Age to Iron Age, SLSs can provide your schools with resources that bring life to the topics being studied in your classrooms.

Many SLSs also have artefact resources that support other curriculum areas such as science, maths and RE.

Please contact your local SLS for more information; you will be truly amazed at the resources we can provide to support you in your day-to-day teaching.

"The children are so excited when the SLS topic boxes arrive. There is a rush to open them and explore the contents"

"Opening SLS topic boxes is like Christmas. We are as excited as the children about what wonders we will find. The resources help to support creative learning and teaching in our classrooms. We love the resources"
